- Comfortable African safari-style camps, with spacious tents, hot showers, and incredible Argentine cuisine.
- One-of-a-kind Patagonia fly fishing experience.

THE CAMPS and fishing

Estancia El Morado encompasses 50,000 acres of Patagonia wilderness. Freshwater springs bubble up from countless places across the estancia, giving birth to a series of lakes and lagunas and several spectacular trout streams. Rainbow trout, brown trout, and brook trout can all be found here, and since they've been behind locked gates forever they are unsophisticated trout that have never seen a fly before.

Trocoman River Camp is perfect for small groups of 4-6 anglers. Guests will stay in comfortable wilderness tented camps, using spacious outfitter-style canvas tents with two guests per tent. The camps will have all the comforts of a wilderness safari-style camp, with a dining tent, well-appointed private toilet facilities, and a camp shower. All tents, cots, sleeping pads, linens, pillows, towels, sheets and blankets are provided.

Guests fish with two anglers to a guide, utilizing a combination 4x4 vehicle, ATV, or hiking to access the nearly limitless fishing opportunities on the estancia. For those guests interested in riding horses, we can have the gauchos arrange horse-packing into the more remote areas of the estancia.

Custom Itineraries

Trocoman River Camp is easily combined with Estancia Pilolil on the famous Alumine River, or any of Patagonia Outfitters other well-known destinations in the region.

Every Patagonia Outfitters Itinerary is fully customize-able. Our team has been organizing memorable fishing adventure in Argentina for nearly 40 years, and will work with you to build the perfect itinerary.

All of our trips begin or end with domestic flights from Buenos Aires to either Neuquen or San Martin de los Andes. We will meet you at the airport and take care of you for the duration of your stay with us in northern Patagonia.
